The Admiration of His Silent Adorers

The angels are more than attentive. They followed their Lord immediately, first to Nazareth, then where ever His Mother went with their God, to Elizabeth and back to Nazareth and to Bethlehem. It is referred to them in the same way as they were present, namely silently. They assist a mystery, totally unimaginable for the heavenly spirits, to any logic, the Highest makes Himself the lowest. They are, so to speak, "without words", silently admiring, humbly and yet lovingly adoring, totally, with all their mind and will, at His disposition, never stopping their song of praise: "Holy, holy, Holy Lord!". The Little Flower said once: "Silence is the sweet language of the angels and all the elect. (The Poetry of St. Therese of Liseux, Washington, DC 1996, 232).

The Fathers of the Vatican Council confess clearly that the Son of God upon "taking human, nature, introduced into this earthy exile that hymn which is sung throughout all ages in the halls of heaven", (SC83) the "heavenly liturgy which is celebrated in the Holy City of Jerusalem" (SC8) so that today, "with all the warriors of the heavenly arm we sing a hymn of glory to the Lord...until He our life shall appear and we believe we too will appear with Him in glory". Therefore, we are not wrong, when we believe that all the angels, "all the warriors in the heavenly army," were present at Jesus birth, the real High Priest with His liturgical Choir... By their act of loving adoration they were present to the Christ Child in Bethlehem. Although the worldwide enrollment was a heavy cross for St. Joseph and Our Lady, still it was revealed to be an instrument of divine providence for the Son of God's appearance in the flesh among men. And again, which the circumstances of His birth, the misery and extreme poverty in a stable and among animals, was rather pitiful, it indicated another aspect of divine providence, mainly to recapitulate ALL THINGS (not only men and angels) in Christ (cf Eph1); in a way, we may say that the universe, all God's creatures, inorganic, organic and sensitive corporal creatures and the angels are pure spiritual creatures, 'welcomed' their Creator. The angels were there, silently before the crib as today before the Eucharistic crib, our tabernacles.

Angels are first sent to adore and contemplate God-made-man. They love first and foremost God and with all their being. In this they find their eternal bliss and joy. "In heaven their angels always behold the face of my Father." (Mt 18:10)...From the presence of God they go forth; they are sent by God, and bring good news from God in their appearance and message.

The fact that the priestly ministry is an angelic minster obliges us to consider this example closely. It not only teaches us to love God above all things, and --sharing in his love--our neighbors, even our enemies. Somehow deeper, the angels show us the primacy of being before doing, of prayer before preaching, of the silence before speaking, and, we may add of silent adoration before laborious intercession. St. Charles Borromeo teaches us priest: "You must realize that for us churchmen nothing is more necessary than mediation. We must meditate before, during and after everything we do." Just as we see here with the angels, there must be a hidden part of our life, private with the Lord, distant from the "public" life; a daily rhythm of prayer and work.
